Dear Commissioner:

We are writing to express our strong opposition to the genetic engineering of food; We believe—based on the research we have read—that genetically engineered foods pose dangerous consequences to our health and to our environment.

If the practice can't be banned altogether, we ask you to support mandatory testing and labeling of genetically engineered food. This way, at least, consumers can make informed decisions about what to eat and serve their children.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

Beth Sackman
